Grandfathers.

I often wish that Shakspeare had not put that speech-picture of life into the mouth of Jacques. Jacques was a melancholy man, and took a melto his mind as chuckling and crowing in the nurses arms, and not as muling and puking. In like manner, he might have drawn a pleasant elaborate these facts. picture of a green and happy old age, instead of nsisting so much on leanness and slippers and shrunken shanks. The seven ages, as Jacques with very many beautiful exceptions, and I love to dwell upon them. There is a puritying influence in old age, which we all recognize. We may know that the old man has led a wicked life, but when old age comes upon him, wrinkling his brow, blanching his bair, and bowing him to the earth, t seems as if he had been redeemed and purified by time. I can understand why the patriarchs prayed so fervently and so earnestly for length of days; prayed for life until the passions and vanities of human nature should have passed over like a cloud, leaving the heart to beat its last throb on the peaceful shore of eternity. It al ways seems to me that at forescore a man is neither in this world nor in the next, but that he is in a position between the two, and can look The Ambrosia will suit you to a T. I should find it difficult to talk of old grandfathers otherwise than in this strain, for I have never known carton an old grandfather who, whatever his previous is not altogether unkind. While it withers the beauty it also expunges the traces of the evil passions. The film that comes over the eye is a veil to hide the glare of anger; the wrinkle that score the brow are strokes of time's pen design-Passion has written there so boldly. I can recall many grandfathers who were a practical testimony to the soundness of the theory which I have just broached with regard to the purifying influence of age. I remember one, a little feeble, cheery, merry hearted old fellyw, who had been a terrible Turk in his young days. He had been passionate, imperious, violent, a constant source of trouble to his wife, and a terror to his child-

As they were scudding along the cloister, the demon lady cried out "thiaves" and vanished

The monks rushed out and caught their brother running away with the booty. They tied him to a pillar, and went back to bed, deferring his punishment till morning. Now the devil returned to him in his own form and made merry with his misfortunes, advising him to pray for help to the beauty he loved to paint. The poor friar took the hint; called on the vir gin. Don't Worry

The Divine goodness toward our favored land has been so remarkably manifested in every period of its bistory, and especially in conducting us safely through our late momentous struggle, that, while we gratefully praise our Almighty Preserver for all that is past, it should, save the St Louis Republican, teach us devoutly to trust Him for all that's to come. But "all men have MAJ. not faith," and there are some unbappy croakers, North and South, whose gloomy forebodings C. and prognostications, as to the future, remind us of the happy rebuke administered to Bulstrode COL. JESSE BAYLES, Whitelocke, the Ambassador of Oliver Cromwell to Sweden in 1653 While stopping at Harwicke on the night preceeding his embarca tion, which was very stormy, he was much dis turbed in mind while reflecting on the distracted and threatening state of the nation. It bappened that a favorite and confidential servant occupied an adjoining bed, who, finding that his master could not sleep, at length said, "Pray, sie, will you give me leave to ask you a question?" "Certainly." "Don't you think that God governed the world very well before you came into it?" "Undoubtedly " "And, pray, sir, don't you think He will govern it quite as well when you are gone out of it?" "Certainly " "Then, sir, -pray excuse me-but don't you think you may trust Him to govern it quite as well as long as you live?" David Dale Owen, late State Geologist, will show that these lands are situate in the midst of the finest coal fields of the mineral substances.

Near the mouth of Coal Creek, where the Company has large quantities of lands salt water has been discovered equal in quality to the Kanawha. This water was procured some 35 years ago by boring, soon after, the On-ondags salt finding its way down the Wabash and Krie Canal, Mr. Thomas, the proprietor, finding himself un-able to compete with it, abandoned the manufacture. In his boring be encountered that which recently disclosed facts prove to have been coal oil Those lands all lie in close proximity to the Wabasi and Rrie Canal, some of them upon its banks.

Mr. John McManomy, the business agent of the company, has returned from a tour of observation of the oil regions of Pennsylvania, convinced that the lands leased by the company, in Fountain and Parke counties, has, so far as the general formation of the country and the surface indications present themselves, a stong analogy in the oil and mineral substances as found on French Creek, Pennsylvania, where the greatest quantity and the most valuable oil is found. Mr. McManomy has purchased for the company the most approved machinery, with adi the fixtures necessary for operation, and is preparing with experienced workmen the speedy develop-ment of the hidden treasure of the lands of the company. All the indices of coal oil, found in localities where ! has been procured, are strongly marked in various lo-calities of the lands of the Company, affording every rational prospect of success. The company thinks it unnecessary to make any other reference to the character of the lands, other than the report and map referred to.

situated nineteen miles from Jeffersonville, near Heary-ville. The surface indications on these lands, together with the geological formations, are such as to justify the most sanguine expectations of finding abundant deposits of oil. Experienced oil men from the oil regions of Pennsylvania and elsewhere, have prospected this ter-ritory, and say that it compares favorably with the best il regions in the east.
